Mo from Santa here's no GOP

Discussions with local Republicans we have conducted out that the weakness of the Republican Party throughout most of the South was due to the fact that they made little or no effort to work the ground up. The relatively few Republicans who do work the ground up and yell their missions primarily in the national elections and sometimes on the local level. But as a party, as a political organization, it isn't in existence in Mississippi.

It was four years ago, because of a vague understanding between the national stand of the Republican and Democratic parties on race questions, that Republicans did make a good showing for Governor. But so, however, they used in an election for candidate.

Last week the local Republican hierarchy let two candidates run as Republicans in the local election. Joe Burckle wanted to run as a Republican and Charles Shaw wanted to run on the same ticket as supervisor, Beat 3. The reason for the refusal was that neither had been active in Republican circles in the past two years. This committee decision was a different point.

On the first place, we question the legal sufficiency of the basis. In other words, we doubt that the executive committee of its state prototype under the constitution of the United States has the right to do this. In fact, for how long has the Republican Party been active in the Republican Party in Mississippi four years ago.

Second, and more important aspect of this is that the weak Republican party should have an opportunity to present a candidate for office. It can never hope to gain statewide support without doing this. In fact, as long as a group of blue bloods attempt to say who can be a Republican for that long there will be no Republican Party in Mississippi.

akes more an a law

Mississippi law provides that a municipality may adopt a procedure can clean up a disreputable property and bill and assess the actual cost up to a maximum of $100 against it. But this law may soon be of importance to property owners in Bay St. Louis.

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce Monday night voted to ask the city fathers to let the property owners of disreputable property clean it up or else have the city proceed under the mentioned law.

It goes, we hope commission council will support the Chamber of Commerce's suggestion. We hope our property owners in general will support it.

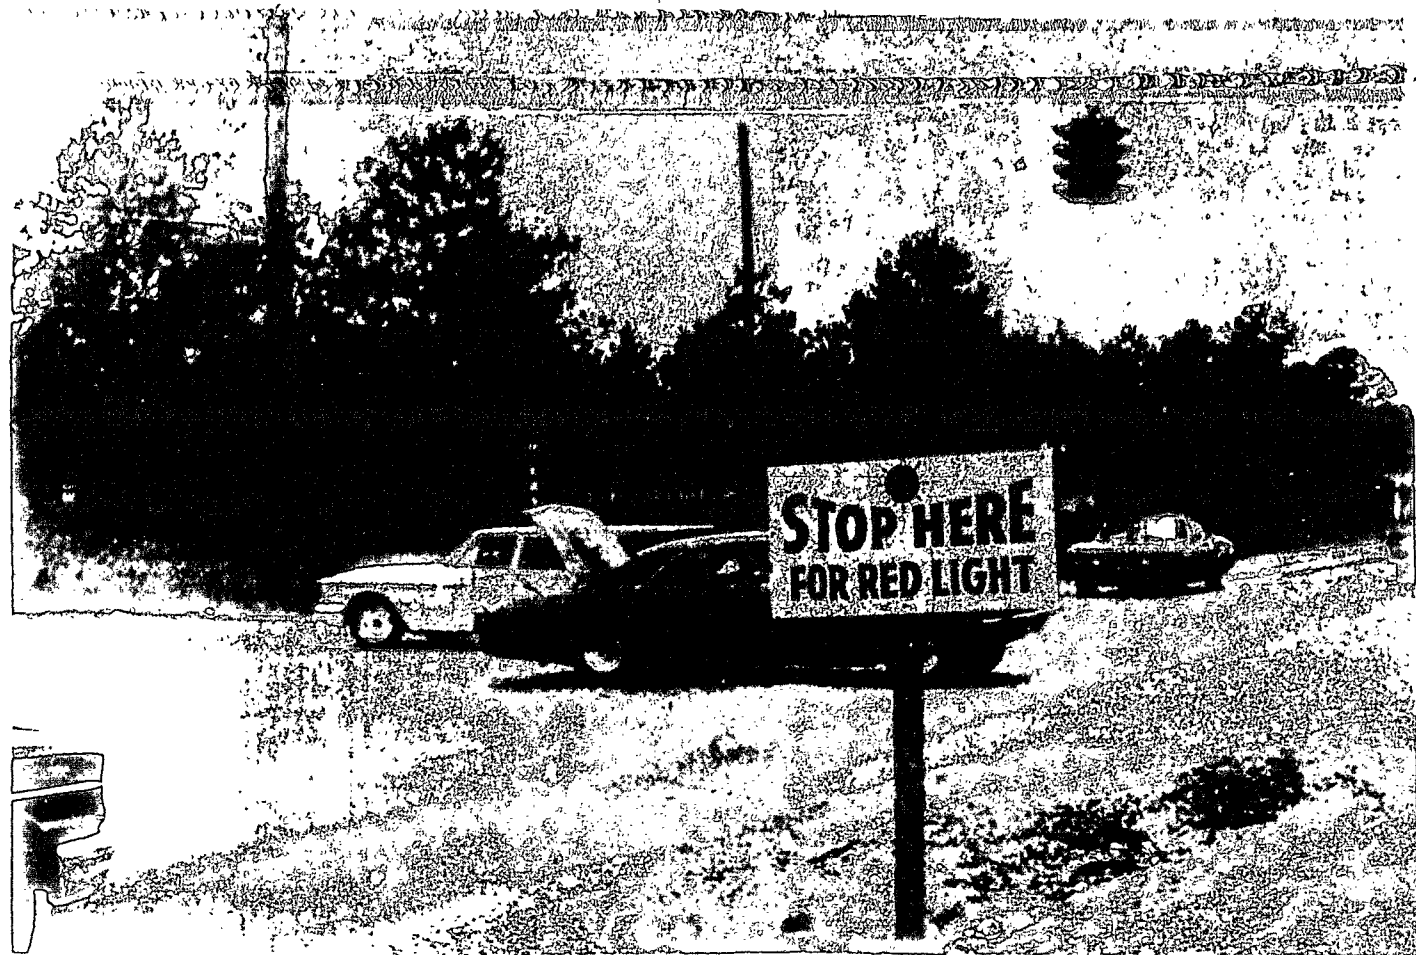

During up a vacant lot or fallen-in building, a small part of our need. Our people as a whole tend to take more pride in appearances of their municipalities, though this is less true of Bay St. Louis.

Years back the Bay-Waveland Garden Club has been beautifying the downtown area. The annual Garden Club sponsored Gulf of Mexico Pilgrimage. They persuaded downtown merchants to cooperate in a clean-up, fix-up, paint-up program in which white picket fences were placed, buildings cleaned, and high weeds in evidence water side of Front Street were cleared.

All told, that brief, if energetic, period produced results.

It is that with a tom up street in front of the property will tend to just shrug his shoulders and say, "So what?" but the tom up street will not exist.

We need it for all property owners to take pride in their homes and yard. In most cases to do this will take more than the time taken up watching the weeds. When done we will have cities of the South.

YOU ARE WARNED - Relatively new lights at intersection of Main Road and US 90 are proving hard to spot and, in consequence, fender bending is not too uncommon at location. To avoid motorists new signs have been installed but, although idea is good, they appear to be too close to creating to do proper warning job. There have been several accidents here recently.

In time 27,000 ton is deficit in Hancock

Use of agricultural lime to add dollars to the economy of Hancock County will be encouraged during July, according to County Agent O.O. Swords.

Swords is local chairman in the state-wide Lime Emphasis Month campaign. Soil testing is the key to getting better growth of crops and more dollars, he said.

Many farmers have collected samples from their fields and pastures and asked Swords to send them to the laboratory at Mississippi State University. When the results came back, they were often told more lime was needed to the recommendation for commercial fertilizer than for liming.

"If your soil needs lime and you fail to apply it, you can't expect the full benefit from your fertilizer investment. Indeed, your crops may do so poorly without lime that they will be unprofitable," Swords said.

The lime deficit of the crop and pasture land in Mississippi is nearly eight million tons. The deficit in Hancock County is 27,000 tons.

Proper liming would add $100 million or more per year to the farm income of Mississippi, agronomists estimate. This would help greatly to reach the goal of state farm production having an annual value of $1.5 billion by 1975, an increase of 62 percent in a decade.

Lime helps the growth of crops several ways, the county agent explained. It prevents the accumulation of toxic amounts of manganese and aluminum, increases the availability of phosphorus and molybdenum, reduces the loss of potassium by leaching, supplies calcium and magnesium, and improves the physical properties of many soils.

The need for lime varies with soil type and the kind of crop grown. The Extension Soil Testing Department recommends lime whenever the test shows pH 5.5 or lower. The pH range of 5.5 to 6.5 is recommended for non-legume crops such as cotton and corn. It should not fall below 6.0 for legumes such as clover and soybeans.

Lime Emphasis Month is sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service and the Mississippi Extension Service, American Society of Agronomy, with many agricultural agencies and organizations cooperating.

"A Conservative View"

by James J. Kilpatrick

The nomination of Thurgood Marshall to the U.S. Supreme Court has produced cries of jubilation within the liberal left. On the conservative side of the fence, a sharp dismay. Where goes the Constitution now?

The big news in Marshall's nomination, of course, is that he is the first Negro ever to be named to the court. In the larger view, the matter of his race is immaterial. The overriding fact is that in choosing Marshall to replace the retiring Tom Clark, President Johnson deliberately has moved to upset the rough balance of liberalism and conservatism that recently has prevailed upon the high tribunal. Next term, the forces of judicial restraint will be represented only by Harlan, Stewart, and White, with an occasional vote from Black. The judicial activists will be in full control.

To either view—conservative or liberal—the consequence of this replacement cannot be emphasized enough. When the founding fathers created the Supreme Court in the Constitution of 1787, it was widely supposed that the court always would be the weakest branch of the central government. The driving force of the court's first Mr. Justice Marshall—Chief Justice John—changed all that. By a process of evolution, culminating dramatically in the Warren Court, the tribunal has become the most powerful authority in the whole of our federal system. Its members, serving for life, are in a commanding position to shape national policies as they please. These days, they often are pleased to turn the Constitution into wax.

Nothing that is said here to intend criticism of Thurgood Marshall, the man. He is an immensely attractive fellow, as charming as his predecessor of 150 years ago. During a decade of bitter litigation on civil rights issues, Southern attorneys developed an abiding respect and affection for him. At one time, it might have been possible to oppose his nomination by reason of Marshall's total concentration on the narrow field of Negro rights, but his service on the U.S. Second Circuit and his experience as Solicitor General have removed that objection. Beyond civil, he is qualified for the high court—more qualified, in truth, than many of his predecessors.

Neither is this intended to say that Clark was a wholly conservative on the bench, or that members of the liberal party in every case follow predictable lines. Clark had his activist relatives, as in the reapportionment cases; he was not above using his high office to vent his personal spleen, as in the Toilet Goods Association case of May 22. Most judges jump the philosophical traces now and then.

Nevertheless, the briefest glance at key cases of this past term will make the point. In Adler v. Board of Education, Clark was one of five who voted to sustain the conviction of 32 Negro students who undertook to trespass upon the Leon County Jail in the name of civil rights. The opinion put a brake on some of the excesses of racial demonstrations. How would Marshall have voted in that case?

This past Monday, in Walker v. Birmingham, Clark was one of five who voted to sustain the conviction of Martin Luther King for putting his own view of the law above the order of a court. Would Marshall have voted to send Martin Luther King to jail?

In Fortson v. Morris, Clark was one of five who upheld the power of the Georgia legislature to name a Governor when no candidate obtained a majority in the popular election. Nothing in the 14 Amendment, said the majority, prevents a State from ordering its own affairs. But Marshall's whole record demonstrates a doctrinaire view of the 14th; he reads into "equal protection" all sorts of provisions the framers of that amendment never intended.

In Cooper v. California, and again in McGray v. Illinois, Clark was one of five who voted to strengthen the hand of police officials in securing evidence of crime. The two decisions served to bring common sense back to the law of search and seizure.

What would Marshall have voted in these critically important cases? It is a fair surmise that he would have voted with Warren, Douglas, Brennan and Fortson to reverse.

What the court and country will be getting in Marshall will be a more congenial Fortson, a less truculent Goldberg, a more disarming Brennan. The appointment is a great tribute to Marshall's own skill and industry; he is the grandson of a slave, the son of a Pullman porter. No critic would wish to take away from the heart-warming success story that came to its climax Tuesday. All the same, in any conservative view of the workings of the court, the nomination is something worse than net no-gain. This was bad news—almost disastrous news—and we shall be living with it for the next ten years at least.

Editor, Sea Coast Echo: I would like to use this means to express the appreciation of the Cypress District in the Hancock County United Fund Agency.

The check which Mrs. C.R. Beyer sent will greatly help to further "Seaside" in our area.

As your Vice District Chairman, I urge all to support this fine agency in the fall, when their "Fund Raising Campaign" begins. We in Seaside are just one organization they help to support.

I would also like to thank you for the Echo for the fine coverage you've given our activities.

Sincerely,
J. J. HOWE

Editor, Sea Coast Echo: The price placed upon the life of a child in Bay St. Louis is $10. If you have a child in your neighborhood who can't you, run him down with your car. In the event that you fail to kill him the $10 fine will be imposed - try again.

How do I know this? I am a clerk - it is very simple - my car was caught by an auto mobile while riding his bike on Duane Street. The driver of the car was heard to shout, "73 years of age and killed in one eye. He has a reputation for reckless driving and could not be trusted to drive a car." He was killed by a car which was driven by a man who was a member of the local police force. The driver was found guilty of reckless driving and was sentenced to prison.

Letters to the editor are always welcome. They should be on pertinent topics, in good taste and limited to 300 words. The Sea Coast Echo requires also that each letter be properly signed by the writer before it will be considered for publication. No letters unsigned or containing pseudonyms will be published.

Dear Mayor Lehart: On Sunday, June 18, 1967, I had the misfortune of having to call your fire department and I wish to also express my gratitude to the firemen and crew who responded to my call. I was very grateful to have them there to help me. I am sure they will be very helpful to all who call them.

With a sincere thank you to all who helped me. I am sure they will be very helpful to all who call them.

Of the 24 unions involved in the railroad dispute, 17 have now settled with the carriers on the basis of a 5 per cent increase. The conductors are settling for 6 per cent. However, six shop craft unions, led by the International Association of Machinists, Roy Stiemiller president, have refused.

It was Stiemiller, incidentally, who broke the wage guidelines in the showdown with the airline companies last year and almost forced Congress to write a compulsory arbitration act at that time.

Sincere men are on both sides of the dispute and understandable issues are involved. The shop craft unions, however, are only 50,000 men compared with the 500,000 who have signed up with the carriers. Though the shop crafts include the metal workers, the blacksmiths, electricians and other skilled crafts, the machinists are the biggest group. They have been wages for similar work skyrocketed in the airline and other industries, while the pay of skilled railroad labor has been kept down. This resulted, from an old Railroad Brotherhood principle that wage increases should apply across the board to the man who sweeps up the baggage room as well as to the highly skilled engineer.

The dispute became more accentuated last Monday when mediators in the Long Island Railroad wage controversy, headed by George Reedy, ex-vice to LBJ, recommended an immediate increase of 66 cents an hour, with a total wage for shop craft workers of $4.20 an hour, in the third year. This was immediately accepted by the Rockefeller administration, and immediately increased the lobbying efforts of Machinist President Stiemiller, and other craft unions in the halls of Congress.

Their No. 1 spokesman was Harley Staggers, the benign Congressman from West Virginia, elected with strong labor support. Staggers is chairman of the House Commerce Committee and voted against the railroad bill. However, Republicans and Southern Democrats passed the bill out of committee over his head.

Staggers then declared war on the bill, said it would pass the entire House of Representatives only over his dead body. Joining him at first were such conscientious Congressmen as Frank Thompson, N.J., Jim O'Hara, Ill., John Brademas, Ind., John Dingell, Mich., and John Moss, Calif. They are strong for the President but at first put labor ahead of the President.

Siemiller vs. LBJ

Dingell and Moss have written a substitute bill providing for railroad seizure. Sen. Morse, however, points out that this would permit a railroad administrator to set any wages he pleased, regardless of federal mediators. He could even cut wages, and a labor couldn't do anything about it. The Moss-Dingell substitute was finally defeated.

The White House brought its big guns into play to influence New York Congressmen. None other than Arthur Krim of United Artists, the big money raiser for the Democrats; also Eddie Weal, the New York attorney, telephoned New York Democrats Joe Califano of the White House staff did likewise.

But most of them seemed more loyal to Roy Stiemiller of the Machinists than to LBJ.

Not that the railroads, once vigorously opposed to compulsory arbitration, are now veering toward it. Reason for that when mediators came in with a recommendation during the Roosevelt administration, FDR would intervene on behalf of the unions and urge management to give a little more. This started the precedent of letting labor contest a mediation board's findings while management was forced to accept. Compulsory arbitration, say some management spokesmen, would be better than lopsided mediation.

The tremendous volume, the many different insurance companies and the wide variety of benefits that may be purchased creates many problems when a patient is admitted to a hospital for an assignment of benefits thereon provided.

A valid assignment of insurance benefits to the hospital involves the same basic and legal principles as an assignment of any other thing of value. They are:

(1) Only those benefits, to which one is entitled under the terms of the specific policy purchased, may be assigned.

The patient may have a valid claim against the insurance company, but the insurance company does not owe the hospital anything. The HOSPITAL CANNOT AND DOES NOT ASSUME THE BURDEN OF SETTLING ANY DISPUTE BETWEEN THE INSURANCE COMPANY AND THE PATIENT.

The hospital has no control whatsoever over the insurance company or who they pay. It is the responsibility of the insurance company to pay the patient or the beneficiary.

Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON - It was the Democratic Study Group, dominated by some of the staunchest liberal supporters of President Johnson, which did its best to cut the ground out from under LBJ's railroad mediation-arbitration bill to head off the railroad strike. This rift between the liberal Democratic leadership and the President has been played down. Neither side is anxious to advertise it. However, it was a very serious factor during the debate over the anti-strike bill.

Long before the strike deadline, Johnson asked Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, chairman of the War Labor Board during World War II, to draft an act which would head off a tie-up of the nation's railroads.

Morse, who's a Johnson critic on foreign policy, risked a showdown with his labor friends in Oregon by drafting and introducing the bill.

He came up with a compromise whereby mediators would do their best to settle the strike during 90 days. But, if they failed, the unions would be forced to accept the mediators' terms for a period of two years after which the agreement would end.

Arthur Goldberg, former Secretary of Labor and former counsel for the United Steelworkers, advised that the Morse bill is the best possible in the emergency. George Taylor of the University of Pennsylvania, the famous labor negotiator, expressed the same opinion. So have other prominent labor experts. They describe it as a very sincere effort by President Johnson to preserve collective bargaining rather than adopt compulsory arbitration.

"The right to strike is a limited one in time of war," Morse told his labor friends. He reminded them that George Meany, now president of the AFL-CIO, had not with him in various wartime labor disputes and voted against labor when strikes threatened.

THE PRICE IS RIGHT

During the years 1940 through 1964, when I was privileged to serve as your Sheriff, in order to have a more efficient and effective Law Enforcement Protection for Hancock County and adjoining counties, I had our two-way radios set up on the same frequency as Pearl River County, Madison County and Hattiesburg.

Two-way radios were given to Fred Bourgoin, Town Marshal of Waveland, and to most Constables in the County, to provide County-Wide Protection. Citizen Band Radios of Hancock County were tied in with the Sheriff's Office.

We later obtained a teletype machine to give Hancock County State-Wide Protection and Assistance if needed.

During my term of office, 85% of the crimes committed in Hancock County were solved.

If I am given the privilege of being your next Sheriff, I will give you the same protection as when I was Sheriff from January 1, 1963 to January 1, 1964.

Your Vote and Assistance will be greatly appreciated.

TO VOTERS OF PEARL RIVER AND HANCOCK COUNTIES

The Vocational and Technical Training Act passed in 1964 regular session of the Mississippi Legislature coming into force. This far-reaching legislation will great benefit to us since it aids prospective employees.

This act provides for state funds to match local a 50-50 basis for the establishment of vocational and training centers within our state's public school system.

Pearl River Junior College has received $100,000 state funds matched by $169,070.00 in local and $383,603.00 in federal funds for a total of $652,673.00 for its vocational and technical training program.

I supported this bill and the state's training in our junior colleges. I worked for and supported that allow withholding two of the four mills state tax for educational or industrial purposes. The two mills being withheld in Pearl River Junior College are being used to support Pearl River Junior College. For continued support of our state and junior and our public schools I am asking you to

POWER

TO YOU

Electricity is a modern-day Aladdin's lamp. Each day we see this astonishing genie in action, making a light glow, a radio play, a machine operate. Today, electricity's so commonplace we take it for granted.

But the building of a complex network of electric facilities — generators, substations, transmission and distribution lines — to meet the electric needs of home, business and industry cannot be taken for granted.

A decade ago our engineers planned for the electricity you use today. As you read this message, the people at Mississippi Power are planning for your electrical requirements in the years ahead.

Our three-year $52 million construction program is evidence of this planning. And it means more power to you.

CANDIDATE FOR
Supervisor Beat 5
Hancock County

I am using this method of stating my platform—One plank each week.

In general: No "PIE IN THE SKY" will be promoted, rather it is a down to earth program.

PLANK #1

BEAUTIFICATION AND SANITATION

The many, many piles of trash scattered along our roads and in vacant lots give us the picture of the most untidy county of the state. This is no longer. They are not only unsightly but are unsanitary. They are the chief breeding places of our flies and mosquitoes. This condition can be contributed to the fact that the need for convenient public garbage dump areas has not been recognized by this and previous administrations.

To correct this situation I will:

1. Establish a "sanitary fill" equivalent to each populated area. They will be operated so that all refuse will be mixed with soil and covered each day.
2. Clean up the refuse now scattered over the county including the filthy public dump at Jackson Ridge. These dumps will be kept in part like landfills.
3. And thereafter, rigidly enforce the Anti-Litter Laws.

Magnolia to supply Regis wood of area

Magnolia Wood, Inc., of Piceyune will be the prime contractor supplying wood fiber to the Ferguson mill of St. Regis Paper Co. near Monticello from extreme southeastern Mississippi, M.G. Rawls, manager of the Southern region of the forestry and timberlands division of St. Regis, announces.

Lamar McQueen of Piceyune is owner and manager of Magnolia Wood, and his supply area will embrace five counties and parts of three others, according to J.H. Wall, forester in charge of wood supply for the Ferguson mill.

The counties are George, Hancock, Harrison, Jackson, Pearl River and Stone, along with the southern parts of Forrest, Perry and Greene.

When in full operation, Magnolia Wood will operate three pulpwood concentration yards and will supply the logs needed for a chip mill to be operated by St. Regis. Some of the wood fiber produced in this area will go to the company's pulp and paper mill at Pensacola, Fla.

Although full scale operation is still sometime off, Magnolia Wood is interested in obtaining new commitments from landowners in its territory. Its telephone number is 798-6966, or P.O. Box 9, Piceyune.

KANTCHA KETCHUM

By L. S. (Doc) Elliott

Last weekend was rotten for catching fresh water fish on the tidal waters above normal and did not fall until around 3 a.m. in the morning, which even made soft crabbing out of the question for most working folk. Some flounders are being caught by the persistent fishermen who can spend the night out in the water.

Harold Sauter, Skat Starita, Carl Thibault and Bob O'Neal made an overnight trip out to Cat Island. According to Carl, they caught 61 white trout and stuck 21 flounders. Cat Island is always a good place to get flounders provided conditions are right.

Red fish are beginning to strike up Jordan River. Danilo Nacaloe caught 9 reds the other day. Jordan River and its tributaries are known for good red fish fishing. They are caught mostly by still fishing with shrimp, live or dead, and occasionally by fly fishing and casting. There are a lot of deep holes up the river which make red fishing ideal and they can be caught on the grassy banks of the river and along the banks of the Bay.

Judge Vlasco is one of our best red fish fishermen and was after them the other day. Bob and Joanne Stewart love their fishing and soft crabbing. You will probably see them out front from now on.

Jim Durham is the new manager of the Pass Christian Lake Golf Club and is doing a good job. Jim is on the job daily. If you have any golfing troubles tell them to him. Jim took over on May 1st.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Stroud are new comers to Waveland. They are both ardent fishermen and love to do any kind. They have been getting their share of soft shell crabs out in front of Waveland. Thanks for the news, Bob.

Louis Tregre has gone back to fly fishing after a few years lay off. Louis didn't do too bad last week. He caught some perch and bass up Pearl River way. Welcome to the fold, buddy.

Richard Matheny loves any kind of fishing and goes after them on every occasion. Dan Egan is doing a good job of getting everything ready for the coming fishing rodeo to be held at Pearlington on July 1 to 4. It is the first rodeo to be held in Hancock County and should have everyone's support. Enter the rodeo and have fun.

Hunting seasons are a little way off. The open seasons for 1967-1968 have been set by the State Game and Fish Commission. After hearing recommendations of a public hearing, the commission has set up regulations for the coming year. When purchasing your fishing and hunting licenses a booklet on the regulations can be secured.

Bestor check on your fishing licenses. They expired on June 1. Game wardens are on the prowl.

One more time: Any residents of Mississippi over 16 years of age or under 65 years of age must have a license to fish in Mississippi waters. Persons over 65 must have with them at the time they are fishing, a certificate from the sheriff's office or circuit clerk. Search tape makes a neat hole holder, according to the Game and Fish Commission. Place the hook about 1/2 inch apart on the sticky side and half-way down the tape. Turn

SPORTSMAN OF WEEK - Richard Matheny, 1218 1/2 N. 1st St., Bay St. Louis, is the sportsman of the week for his fishing success.

In a golf game at PISC with playing with Odell Williams, Walker Ruzza and Jim McDonald, John Hornsby drove the green on the 14th hole, four feet from the cup. Unfortunately, he missed his putt for an Eagle but wound up with a birdie. It was his second birdie in 4 holes. Better luck next time John.

Shrimp are plentiful just now. Commercial fishermen are reporting good catches and they are being bought for as low as 35 cents a pound. This is good news for fishermen who use shrimp for bait, as compared to 85 and 90 cents a pound for frozen shrimp just a month or so ago. Battered shrimp are mighty good eating, too.

John Seafide, Jr., since being home from college, has been getting his share of bass and perch. John is a good fly fisherman and usually gets his share. Like most of us, John brings a little.

Among those noted out soft crabbing were John Genin, Mr. and Mrs. John Damborino, Eddie Marquez, Henry Long, Bob O'Neal, Pat Porter, Jr., Carlos Lander, etc. There is a lot of room out in the Bay and it is plenty of fun catching the little creatures, they all agreed.

Hard crabs are giving better and they are being caught most everywhere according to those going after them. Sarge Laverne Garcia is one of our best crabbers.

Alden Mouffroy, Jerome Carver and August Rouzet made a nice catch of big speckled out at the marshes last week. All three know how to catch them and very seldom throw a blank.

VERY GOOD SERVICE—John Miller receives keys to car purchased from Gerry Lane Chevrolet salesman Dave Sloan.

I bought my first car out of town and never got the service that was promised me. I used my car for a year and a half and it was a real pain. I decided to trade it in for a new one. I went to Gerry Lane Chevrolet and they gave me the best service I could have asked for. They gave me a new car and they gave me a great price. I am very happy with my new car and I am very happy with Gerry Lane Chevrolet.

B-WYC sails into Adams Cup event

Bay-Waveland Yacht Club qualified for a starting gun position at the Adams Cup quarter finals early July in Mobile in an elimination regatta called the last weekend.

Clippershot Judy Reeves earned the Bay entry in the four race event with a crew of Phil White and Valorie Nyas. Maseen Quigley was also there.

Southern of New Orleans, Gulfport YC and Jackson YC also called the office.

Standing at the beginning of the last event were Bay-Waveland, Gulfport, both 9 1/2; Southern, 8 1/4. The Bay has entry eliminated first, second and third in the first three races.

The final race, the four and a quarter mile going to the winning boat, decided standings. Clippershot Reeves came in third place, giving her enough points to stay ahead of Jackson and win the last of three quarter-finals.

Southern won the most, Gulfport was second and Jackson trailed.

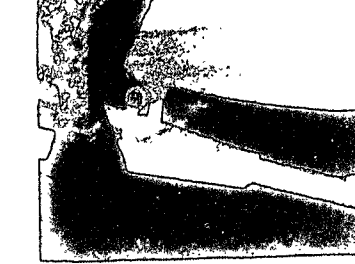

"If this Bay crew is successful in winning the competition then all four, the three crew and the alternate, will have to sail the final event," Hal Wetherbee, regatta chairman, said. This is because in the final race will be large.

PRETTY MESS—Edward J. Nelson, 125 Washington St., displays part of 87 trout of assorted varieties he got at undisclosed fishing spot last Saturday.

SOME FISH—Gene Jungling, 8, displays 45-pound drum, caught by his father near U.S. 90 bridge which can help land.

the lower part of the tape up over the barbs. Just cut off a hook as you need it.

Any low spot in a power boat that is not ventilated properly can collect dangerous gas fumes and blow a boat apart. Opening up the boat before starting the engine is a safety precaution.

Glad to see Neville Jacob back on the job at the Echo after a short illness. Jake enjoys his fishing, we are told. Keep well, partner, the fish are waiting for you.

Red Rohlitz has about given up fishing. He is devoting his old time to golf and to pretty good at it. Ask those who play with him.
